

Henge Tour: 1st June 2011 - Astrological weather forecast

The Sun rules the 4th on the 1st of June, indicating a warm summer's day.

The Moon in Gemini suggests some humidity, and Mercury in Taurus; a possible cool breeze as well.

Jupiter in Aries Novile the Sun suggests a fine day with a high cloud ceiling, so visibility should be good. Although this tour will see the last remnant of the instability which has been characteristic during the Saturn-Uranus Opposition, Saturn's position in Libra in the 5th Trine the Ascendant is another indicator of a fine day.

With both the Moon and Mercury in the 12 Square Neptune I wouldn't rule out the possibility of rain, though, on balance, it is likely to be light, if it happens at all.

Conclusion:

A bright sunny day with a light wind and good visibility. Possibility of a light shower is slight, though unlikely.
